LOCAL UM STUDENTS HEAD ABROAD FOR STUDY

MISSOULA —

Anthony Scales of Victor, a senior in German and English, and Ryan Suda of Hamilton, a junior in English, were among 17 University of Montana—Missoula students who left Missoula Feb. 17, bound for Germany and Austria as participants in UM's German Study Abroad Program.

The group, traveling with foreign languages Assistant Professor Elizabeth Ametsbichler, touched down first in Neckargemund, Missoula's sister city in Germany for the past four years. There they have a month of total immersion, living with host families and taking part in special courses at the University of Heidelberg, Germany's oldest university, before moving on to Vienna to finish the semester.

Although UM students have been going to Vienna every spring since 1973, the Neckargemund/Heidelberg segment wasn't added until 1994, after the sister-city relationship was established. The new segment has "greatly enhanced" the program, Ametsbichler said, giving the students an opportunity to form personal relationships in German families before attacking the metropolis of Vienna.

Students in the program are enrolled at UM for 16 credits, which they earn in grammar, conversation, theater and culture courses. To get into the program, students must have excellent

German language skills and be in at least their fourth semester of German. Three weeks of intensive orientation on the UM campus precede the trip.
